

Dear Automobile User,

We are from the Human Treatment of All Creatures Fluffy Society (HTACFS), and we couldn't help but notice the dead Red-Breasted Nuthatch plastered to the front of your car. Please understand that animals, especially Red-Breasted Nuthatch's, have feelings, just like yourself, and do not enjoy being smashed into the hoods and grills of oncoming cars.

It seems you have killed Henry IV, son of Charleston and Thelma Nuthatch, nephew of Christoph and Jane Nuthatch. The Nuthatch family have been residence of the Ohio region for nearly three million years now, but have recently run into a streak of bad luck, dying and such, and are becoming nearly extinct. Thanks to you, one more precious Nuthatch has lost its life recently.

In order to properly make amends for your sin, please send 52 cents to Alex Laird, 251 N Main St. #4207, Cedarville, OH, 45314 in a small envelope. This money will be donated to help take care of the family and victims that are left from this tragedy.

Please improve your driving.

Great Guilt Shall Be Upon You,
Alex Laird, Founder, President, and CEO of HTACFS
